REPORT OF

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To School Board of Greenland:

I call attention to the statistical tables which are in part summaries of report sent to State Department last July.

Table IV shows an increase of 18 p. c. in total enrollment, 26 p. c. in average membership and 26 p. c. in average attendance during the past five years and 17, 28 and 41 p. c. increase for the same items respectively during the past ten years. Last fall 50 pupils were enrolled at the grammar room and three more desks and seats added to accommodate the increased number. I consider it unfortunate for the interests of public education in Greenland that the town does not provide suitable modern equipment in building accommodations. I understand some citizens believe the Board and myself to be passably reconciled to the present arrangement at the grammar school. I believe I voice your sentiment when I say I consider the arrangement entirely inadequate but the best that possibly can be done under the circumstances, and that returning to one teacher plan is not to be considered. The passing of classes up and down stairs does not hurt the children a bit but it is a nuisance to have the school thus interrupted and about half of the school cannot get the attention of the teacher as they should and as would be the case if a distinct intermediate room were provided. I believe if a new building for school purposes is not in order, the whole of the academy building must be used, architectually unsuitable tho it is for school purposes. The problem of getting a teacher for the school as arranged is no small matter, as teachers now days will have as little as possible or nothing at all to do with such a school arrangement. Their future depends upon present success and they realize only too well that desirable work cannot be done under such conditions. Thus the places that offer one to three grades and no more to a room are the places that will get the teachers. Some 500 vacancies occur in June each year in this state and the Normal schools graduate hardly 125 teachers. hence a town is obliged to present something desirable in order to compete with other places. Teachers are human beings, and are going to look out for their own interests. Given fair school equipment they either give creditable service or the school authorities have less compunction in the matter of an immediate successor.

Utilizing the whole of the academy would make possible space for manual training and domestic courses not advisable under present arrangement. It is a commonly accepted idea that the child's powers should be at work along the same general constructive lines as those which have brought civilization into being, himself to perform actually those fundamental types of activity which make civilization what it is. Of the towns in this district, Newington made provision this year for complete equipment for such work and the courses are now in operation. The new law requiring attendance at school until the age of 16, unless the elementary school course is completed before that age, renders more advisable these courses tending toward vocational ends.

Beginning this year, pupils of grade VIII whose daily work and tests have met our requirements will receive certificate for high school as usual. Any pupils with deficiencies to make up by summer vacation study will be required to take tests in those studies in the fall at Portsmouth instead of Greenland as heretofore. Of nine pupils in grade VIII last June, seven were given certificate for high school and entered in September. The percentage of promotion last June was about the same as the state average, as noted in table II. The total enrollment in the high school during the past two years shows a considerable decrease, but this appears only a temporary condition as the grammar grades are larger at present. In a plan made use of by the State Department to rate the efficiency of the school system in towns having a high school, the 60 towns ranged in efficiency from 21 to 96 on a scale of 100, the median being 42. Basing a calculation for Greenland on the same plan, the efficiency would show a rating, at present, of 35 or in a class including Claremont, Hinsdale, Milford and Somersworth. There are at present 10 pupils in grade VIII. Notwithstanding the fact that our record for promotions is equal to the state average and that graduates from the grammar school rank comparatively well in secondary school work, some pupils have been sent to Portsmouth school to do the eighth grade work and some parents are considering a like move for a few more children. The reason seems to be the undesirable class room arrangement, which, in spite of the results indicated, does not favor desirable progress.

Class room work has made acceptable progress. A regular time once in four weeks has been reserved for teachers' meeting and at these meetings I have discussed general class work, school management, given instruction in details of several subjects and directed consideration of recent literature of professional value, all with the purpose of making the school work as practical and efficient as possible.

I have expended the appropriation for supplies, with prices that compare well with other towns in the state. More readers, arithmetics and histories were needed to provide for the larger classes and to replace old and filthy books. Supplementary geography for grades four and eight. geography text for grade five, history for grade four and a music book of general songs are among the books added to the list. Several blank forms for records and reports have been renewed, and, as fast as new pupils are registered, I am changing the office card record of pupils to conform to that recommended by the national government, known as the N. E. A. uniform record. It is commonly used thruout the country and enables a pupil, in going from one town to another, to take along a brief statement that will assist him in being placed to the best advantage in the school system of the new place of residence. The record is also desirable for a permanent reference file.

Music as for the past few years has been under the direction of Miss Hoyt. Instead of one hour at each school once in two weeks, we are trying plan of one half hour each week. The former arrangement made the music periods too long to hold effectively the attention of the classes and also left too long an interval between the periods of supervision by the teacher. With a continuance of the able direction Miss Hoyt under the new plan, the music should be even better than it has before, which same has been highly creditable.

The attendance last year was fairly good, tho not equal to that of the year before. Of the 135 cases of tardiness, 66 cases were by children from five families and one family furnished 25 cases. Children from five families caused one fifth of all the absence marks. Thus it appears that the habit of irregular attendance is not a common attribute.

Not only is irregular attendance a distinct loss to the pupil and a detriment to general school and class interests, but it is a financial loss to the town. There is a state fund given out each year, to towns of a cerlain class, based upon the average attendance. This year for the first time Greenland received state money for attendance and for certificated teachers in service, altho the high school tuition rebate was lost on account of the lower general tax rate. The difference, however, is $179 in favor of the town. This came about, probably, by the extra amount for transportation, and the chances are in favor of such a benefit next year as the total amount required to be raised is $500 less.

There are as usual many small jobs of repairing in order for next summer and I strongly recommend a portion be assigned for the purpose of gradually and systematically providing adjustable furniture, especially in the primary room, as suggested in my report of last year. The condition of the seats in the primary room is far from comfortable or hygienic. It would not be a waste of funds for such equipment as anything of that kind would be perfectly good to use in any building that might be built.

With appreciation for cooperation rendered, this report is respectfully submitted.
